I think that the NCCA has stricter guidelines and is more reputable than the DETC (Distance Education and Training Council) in general. In my view, both accreditation agencies are excellent. As a standard practice in the health and fitness industry before writing an AFAA certification exam you are required to have, and bring along to the exam ...

AFAA Certification Review (2020) – Is AFAA Worth It?

AFAA's distance education programs for personal training and group exercise instruction are accredited not by the NCCA, but by the DETC, which accredits institutions and their educational programs. DETC accredited entities provide for specific educational programs. In this regard, with a DETC accredited entity, the public might then know that ...
