Frantom 18" rock saw, multi speed, gear drive self feed, it has the blank spot in the feed screw that stops the cutting (it does not have a automatic cutoff switch). The rock vise opens to 8 1/2 inches. The "width of cut" screw gives you 1/4" per seven turns of the handle. I replaced the outboard shaft bearing about a year ago and serviced all of the lube points at that time, I also replaced the old tired motor with a new 1/2 hp 1750 rpm, more energy efficient dual capacitor motor.

Diamond saw blades are what set the speed for a traditional rock saw. Each blade manufacturer sets a recommended and maximum speed for the type and size of the blade. For example, a 6 inch blade has a typical recommended RPM of around 6,000 (max 10,000), an 8 inch is 4,500 (7,500), and a 12 inch is about 3,000 (5,000).
