Regarding Ducks and Universes by Neve Maslakovic was an unexpected surprise that I owe all to Goodreads
and their exploration section. This is a story that starts in 1986 when a professor creates and links an alternate universe.

Universe A and Universe B are linked and travel between the two ensues.

The whole same yet different concept was explored in Mielville's The City and The City and Regarding Ducks and Universes is similar yet, much easier to take in.

edit data. Neve Maslakovic's life journey took her from Belgrade, Serbia to a PhD at Stanford University's STAR Lab to her dream job as a writer. Booklist called her debut novel, Regarding Ducks and Universes, "Inventive... a delight." Neve writes quirky fiction (usually with a mystery twist!) set in universes almost like our own, a past that can be time-traveled to, a near-future city.

Universes was an exploration of one possible scenario involving the many-worlds interpretation in quantum mechanics. the book was written more from the scientific point of view. That interpretation is fairly widely known and used in many contemporary scify works. in tv, Star Trek:The Next Generation episode "Paralels" describes it very well.
