At this point, the book could be a prison novel except that's too constraining so Leonard wonders what would happen if these road dogs of prison became road dogs on the outside. This being Leonard, though, one of the dogs is more into the relationship than the other. And what's more likely to break apart the friendship or road dog-ship of two guys than a woman? So Leonard has to create a new one or simply shift Dawn from Florida out to LA. That's easier, and then let's see ...

Book review: "Road Dogs" by Elmore Leonard | Patrick T ...

'Leonard provides the fizziest and cleverest dialogue in crime fiction. A total delight' The Times . Every prison inmate needs a Road Dog - someone to watch their back, someone they can trust on the inside and out. For wealthy Cuban criminal Cundo Rey, that person is Jack Foley: charmer, ladies' man and infamous bank robber.

Road Dogs by Elmore Leonard | Waterstones

Leonard throws together three battle-hardened survivors from his earlier capers, with predictably unpredictable results. Jack Foley (Out of Sight, 1996) robbed numerous banks before an amateurish mistake and a run-in with Bob Isom Gibbs, aka Maximum Bob, got him sent to prison for a 30-year stretch.

ROAD DOGS by Elmore Leonard | Kirkus Reviews

Elmore Leonard is eternal. In Road Dogs, the PEN USA Lifetime Achievement Award winner and "America's greatest crime master" (Newsweek) brings back three of his favorite characters: Jack Foley from Out of Sight, Cundo Rey from La Brava, and Dawn Navarro from Riding the Rap for a twisting, explosive, always surprising masterwork of crime fiction the San Francisco Chronicle calls, "a sly, violent, funny and superbly written story of friendship, greed, and betrayal."

Road Dogs on Apple Books

One can make a game out of tracking Elmore Leonard's minor characters from work to work: Road Dogs unites characters from Out of Sight, La Brava, and 1995's Riding the Rap. Jack Foley in Out Of Sight and Road Dogs novels gets hit with hard time thanks to the judge from Maximum Bob. Ray Nicolette pops up in both Rum Punch and Out of Sight.

Elmore Leonard (Creator) - TV Tropes

Elmore Leonard is a true master of his craft, and he's still delivering the goods after fifty years of writing. Road Dogs is a winner in every sense of the word, and a novel that will get you hooked on one of the best author America has ever produced. He's now working on another novel, and I'm hoping to read it before either of us dies.
