Book Review - JSTOR

The Discovery Programme publishes in this monograph the results of the North Munster Project's pioneering intertidal archaeological survey in south-west Ireland. The Shannon estuary is introduced in a multidisciplinary chapter that uses archaeology, history, folklore, cartographic sources and placename studies to explore its role in the region's history.

Monographs - Discovery Programme

The Discovery Programme has produced a detailed map of all of the monuments on the Hill of Tara using a combination of the geophysical survey finds and topography. The topography map is in digital format, which means it is fully interactive. It can be interrogated and manipulated in order to reveal features that are otherwise barely visible.
