The last drawing that we come to is the famous study of heads, one that of a man wiser in years, the other of a youthful ingénu, both of them included among the gathered apostles who stand below Mount Tabor in Raphael ' s award-winning painting The Transfiguration (Arts, 12 May), which he undertook in competition with Sebastiano ' s Raising of Lazarus. It is the humanity of both expressions and the subtle distinctiveness of their hands which give the drawing its inexpressible unity.
