The Wizard of Oz revolutionized cinema with its use of color, but it by no means pioneered it. The 1939 musical changed the history of filmmaking the moment Dorothy Gale (Judy Garland) opens the door to the amazing world of Technicolor after a tornado launches her house into the magical land of Oz.

It was not until I saw "The Wizard of Oz" for the first time that I consciously noticed B&W versus color, as Dorothy was blown out of Kansas and into Oz. What did I think? It made good sense to me. The switch from black and white to color would have had a special resonance in 1939, when the movie was made.
